CHINA COAL & MINING EXPO 2005 - Proshow Report

The China 11th International Technology Exchange & Equipment Exhibition on Coal & Mining (also known as China Coal & Mining Expo 2005) was successfully held during 25th to 28th October 2005, at the National Agricultural Exhibition Hall in Beijing, P.R. China.

China Coal & Mining Expo has been held every other year for eleven times and during the twenty two years, it has seen phenomenal growth both in exhibiting companies and space taken. Tremendous efforts has been dedicated to attain this growth and today CHINA COAL & MINING EXPO has become the largest and most established coal and mining event in Asia, attracting visitors from the sector nationwide.

This year's exhibition was supported by the international community of coal and mining, from more than 300 companies—almost doubled the previous event. Exhibitors from 18 countries and regions participated at this expo, showcasing the latest technology and equipment of coal mining and processing industries, on an unprecedented scale ever achieved in the country. Major associations and government trade promotion units have organized pavilions to present at the show, such as UK Pavilion, Australian Pavilion, German Pavilion, US Pavilion, Czech Pavilion, Polish Pavilion, Spanish Pavilion and Canadian Pavilion. We are honored that this year for the first time, CHINA COAL & MINING EXPO is named one among its Global Trade Programs by The Department of Commerce of US. Indeed, this is THE SHOW for China for global trade cooperation and technology exchange in the coal and mining industry, which plays an essential role in facilitating business exchange and in advancing the country's technology in the sector.

Such mission was further realized and represented through the twenty-two sessions of technical seminars held during the exhibition. Latest technology achievements were shared among the professional community, including hundreds of those visitors came from different part of the nation.

CHINA COAL & MINING EXPO 2005

October 25-28, 2005
National Agricultural Exhibition Hall,
Beijing, P.R. China

It is forecasted that China's coal industry will continue to grow rapidly in the coming years. In 2004, China produced nearly 2 billion tones of coal, 15% more than 2003, up from 1.74 billion. The increase of the electrical coal in 2005 is approaching a historical level of 12-17%, well exceeding the expected 5-8%. Moreover, in September 2005, coal's average cost has gone up by RMB41.45 per tone compared against that of September 2004, offering a higher profit margin sustained by a strong demand. Coal industry's profit trend is set to continue in the coming years supported by a promising economic growth, which commands for bigger energy needs. As China is becoming more open to foreign investment in the coal sector, the China Coal & Mining Expo will remain as an ideal global trading platform for technologies particularly equipped to boost modernization of existing large-scale mines and to enable exploration of new sources.
